

G. W. U. LAW SCHOOL BEGINS YEAR'S WORK

Justice Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, Delivers Address on Higher Ideals.

Urging law students to higher ideals and pointing to the high lights in legal history as examples, Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the Supreme Court of the District, last evening made an address at the opening of the George Washington University Law School.

William B. King, president of the law school alumni association, spoke for the alumni and board of trustees. M. Manning Marcus, of the senior class, spoke in behalf of the Columbian Debating Society. Watson Davis, editor of the Hatchet, urged the claims of the school publications.

Justice Stafford outlined the importance of the study of cases, and gave students suggestions about the methods of their study.

This season is the fifty-first for the law school. Opening exercises were held in the law school auditorium, New Masonic Temple, and were presided over by Rear Admiral Charles H. Stockton, president of the university.

Prof. Everett Fraser, dean of the law school, announced the award of prizes. The Phi Delta Phi prize for the member of the first year class who attains the highest average grade, was won by C. G. Marshall.

W. R. Gregg, who stood highest in the second year class, was awarded the Ordway medal. K. S. Neal won the John Byrne and Company prize, awarded yearly to the student attaining the highest grade in real property.

Only two changes were made in the faculty. Prof. Merton L. Person, granted a year's leave of absence at the close of the last session, has accepted an appointment to the faculty of law of the Iowa College of Law for the year. The successor to Prof. Melville Church, who resigned, will be George William Ramsey. Mr. Ramsey graduated in the class of 1888 with honors.

Through the efforts of Mrs. George A. Howe, patriotic instructor of the District tent, flags are being presented this afternoon to the Eastern High School and to the Potomac High School. Mrs. John Sullivan, national patriotic instructor, will make the presentations.

Daughters of Veterans joined other women's patriotic societies at lunch at the First Presbyterian Church, where the Ladies of the G. A. R. are meeting.

Tonight the daughters will be represented at a reception in honor of commander-in-chief David Palmer in the fountain rooms at the Willard.

Business sessions will continue tomorrow.

FIVE G. A. R. VETERANS REST IN HOSPITALS

Among the victims of accidents yesterday whose condition is serious enough to warrant their remaining in hospitals are Mrs. Mary V. Hall, sixty-four years old of Vienna, Va., and her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Brooks, of Landon, Va. They were crossing Pennsylvania avenue near Tenth street northwest about 4 o'clock yesterday when they were struck by a street car. Mrs. Hall's skull was fractured. Her daughter suffered concussion of the brain. At Emergency Hospital their condition is reported as serious.

Miss Jennie M. Lane is also at Emergency today as the result of the explosion of a gasoline stove in her home, 1928 New Hampshire avenue northwest, yesterday afternoon. Her condition is not regarded as serious.

Out of the victims of recent accidents only half that number remain in the wards today. The most seriously ill of the G. A. R. veterans taken there are N. L. Rohrer, of Galesburg, Ill., and R. W. Greenleaf, of Boston, Mass.

Few of the victims of recent accidents and illness incident to yesterday's downtown crowds remain in the local hospitals today. Most of the cases were caused by exhaustion.

A total of about fifty cases were treated during the day at Emergency and at Casualty Hospitals.

At Emergency Hospital the following cases of yesterday are being treated: A. R. Roberts, seventy years old, National Soldiers' Home, Leesworth, Kan., who was removed from the Pension office building suffering from exhaustion.

James Late, sixty-four years old, Canton, Mass., stopping at Soldiers' Home, acute gastritis.

Frederick Heller, seventy-eight years old, of 1020 Fourth street northwest, suffering from a broken shoulder.

ENLISTED IN ARMY WHEN 10 YEARS OLD

Two Months Before Eleventh Birthday R. H. Hendershot Enrolled from Michigan.

William M. Walter, a veteran of Company I, Eighteenth Michigan Infantry, claims the honor of being the youngest soldier during the civil war. Mr. Walter's claim is disputed by another former Michigan soldier, R. H. Hendershot. It transpires that both men were of the same age when they were enlisted.

Mr. Walter was born April 14, 1859, and entered the Eighteenth Michigan at the beginning of the war. He was discharged in 1865, just one month after his fifteenth birthday. Mr. Hendershot served with the Eighth and Ninth Michigan Regiments. He enlisted in the Ninth Michigan at Fort Wayne in October, 1861, just two months before his eleventh birthday. Mr. Hendershot was given the title of "Drummer Boy of the Hapsaharnock" by General Burnside, just after the battle of Fredricksburg, when he captured a Confederate soldier and marched him to General Burnside's headquarters.

Enthusiastic arrangements are being made in all Catholic parishes of the city for the Holy Name Society parade and demonstration October 10.

Baltimore alone will send 4,000 persons to participate in the parade.

The Baltimoreans will make the trip by special train via the B. & O.

Meetings are to be held next week to make final plans. The Society of St. Matthew's parish will meet in St. Anthony's Chapel Monday evening. Pen-nants and banners to be carried by the parish representatives in the parade will be distributed at this meeting.

One of the parade features will be the Fort Myer soldiers who are members of the society in full uniform. It is expected that 300 of Uncle Sam's regulars will be in line, under Sergeant Rawley.

The Soldiers' Home Band will head the delegation from old Trinity parish in Georgetown.

St. Anthony's and Holy Rosary parishes will have a band between them, and many other patriotic organizations will have white pennants and banners.

BLUE AND GRAY TO LISTEN TO WILSON

President Will Make Principal Address At Dedication of Arlington Amphitheater.

One of the unique ceremonies incident to the Grand Army encampment takes place tomorrow when the veterans of the Union army will meet with the veterans of the Confederate army, and together will attend the exercises at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the Memorial Amphitheater at Arlington by President Wilson.

For a number of years the members of the Grand Army, the Confederate Veterans and many other patriotic organizations and individuals have been endeavoring to obtain the construction of a memorial building at Arlington where the veterans could hold their services for the dead, and where special celebrations of various character could be held in a place that has preserved from the weather. The present amphitheater at Arlington is open and an extremely disagreeable place in bad weather. An appropriation has been obtained for a handsome structure that will not only serve the purposes for which the veterans have been working, but will also be a lasting memorial to the men of the North and South and the military heroes buried at the national cemetery.

The program of tomorrow's ceremony calls for the laying of the cornerstone of the building by President Wilson, and as Arlington Cemetery is designed for veterans of the South as well as the North and of the military and naval forces of the country, for all time, representatives of all the bodies interested will be present. Assistant President Wilson will be the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., Colonel Palmer and Capt. Fred Bell, representing the commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans. There will be other Confederate veterans present also.

The ceremonies begin at 2:30 o'clock. Those in charge have notified persons planning to attend the ceremonies that carriages approaching the cemetery from the Highway Bridge will enter by the McMillan gate and go directly to the site of the new building. Automobiles coming by way of the Highway Bridge are directed to enter the Treasury gate and pass to the site by way of the Maine section. Carriages from Fort Myer will enter the main gate and pass south. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, carriages will pass east along McMillan road and automobiles will go west. All vehicles will be marked in the grass plot west and northwest of the new building.

BIG STOLEN DIAMOND IS RECOVERED HERE

Four and a Half Karat Gem, Missing for a Year, Located by Police.

A four-and-a-half karat diamond, valued at $1,000, the center stone of a 300-lavallier stone in New York city more than a year ago, has been recovered by the Washington police.

The original piece of jewelry was stolen from an automobile, where it had been dropped, the New York police say, by a colored boy, who prior to the several diamonds it contained, selling the smaller ones in Asbury Park. The center stone, however, the boy had set in a cheap gold mounting, and pawned the ring here more than a year ago for $400.

Detective Mulligan, of the New York central office, who has been searching for the missing central gem identified the stone yesterday when Matt Horn, of the pawn inspector's office, located the ring in a local pawnbroker's stock.

INVITES VETERANS TO 100TH BIRTHDAY

Dozens of members of the naval veterans' organizations about Camp Emery today received invitations to help James W. Whittlesey, of St. Louis, celebrate his 100th birthday anniversary.

Mr. Whittlesey, who is the president of the Mississippi River Ram Fleet Survivors' Association, and is one of the most active veterans attending encampment, said that it is because he is active and hearty and feeling in the best of spirits that he intends to live 100 years. And then the recipients of the invitation discovered that the date of the celebration was fixed for February 7, 1921, fourteen years from the present time.

PULLMAN IS PRAISED FOR KEEPING ORDER

Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles Says Crowd Was Best Ever At a G. A. R. Parade.

Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, retired, grand marshal of the G. A. R. parade, today complimented Major Raymond W. Pullman, superintendent of police, on the way the crowds were handled yesterday.

General Miles declared he had never seen better order at a parade.

Major Pullman, in a statement thanking the police and Boy Scouts, says: "Whatever success there was may be credited entirely to the splendid teamwork of men on the force, from inspectors to privates, and to the co-operation of the police departments of other cities, of local organizations and of members of the public order committee of the general citizens' committee in charge of the encampment."

"Each inspector, captain and lieutenant in charge of the various details of men along the line of march strove to do his work as perfectly as possible."

"The co-operation of the police departments of all the large cities east of Chicago in sending to Washington their best detectives has made it possible to give both citizens and guests the very best protection against thieves, pickpockets and flimflammers of all kinds, and the assistance given by the trained and uniformed policemen detailed here by Police Marshal Robert Carter, of Baltimore, helped greatly in handling the crowds."

HONOR MEDAL LEGION TO ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers of the Army and Navy Medal of Honor Legion of the United States will be held at the New Willard late this afternoon, following a luncheon at which the members are the guests of Judge William D. Dickey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., commander of the legion.

There was considerable discussion at the annual meeting at the Willard yesterday over the question of a pension for Medal of Honor men. Declarations were made that in England the Victoria Cross awarded for bravery carries a pension with it, and that in Germany the Iron Cross always means that the pension which a bravery has merited it is pensioned.

The committee appointed at last year's meeting to urge a pension for Medal of Honor men stated a pension of $10 a month is being sought and that it is expected a bill to cover this will be passed at the coming session of Congress.
